

Sir Howard Colvin and the History of the King's Works

Sir Howard Colvin, the celebrated architectural historian who, in 2007, died aged 88, was the author of the magisterial Biographical Dictionary of British Architects 1600-1840, revised and still in print - perhaps his best known literary legacy. Less well known generally, but no less magisterial, and essential for castellologists is his History of the King's Works. The six volume work (along with boxes of plans) is the history of public building in England/ Wales/ Scotland (and France) until 1851. As General Editor he was largely responsible for the first two volumes dealing with the medieval period. Vols 1 & 2 The Middle Ages, (1066-1485), (HMSO) included major collaborative contributions by R. Allen Brown and A. J. Taylor. This work had been commissioned in 1951 and Vols. 1 and 2 were finally published in 1963 - over 10 years in the making. In advance preparation a mass of research was undertaken by Colvin, including scouring the Public Record Office (now The National Archive - TNA) and in 1956 he circulated a carefully typed list - 23 pages of foolscap - to his small team of researchers. This, as noted over the page in his own short Introduction, is a compilation of all the then known building survey references archived in the PRO covering all royal castles and palaces and other related buildings before 1660.

A copy of this document - a research tool - was retained by R Allen Brown, who continued to add, by hand, further references found or advised in his own research until he retired; (he died in 1989). A copy was handed by him to CSG member Dr James Petre when he was studying at King's College, London, under Allen Brown in the 1980s. This document has now resurfaced and been transcribed into spreadsheet form. It is here published for the first time. Work has been done to incorporate this information into the CSG / 'Gatehouse' website, and add further TNA references to each castle as they are unearthed. The website also includes hypertext links to books or documents that become available online. Thanks are due to James Petre for making this list freely available, and to Philip Davis for his work on transcription and spreadsheet manipulation.

THE HISTORY OF THE KING'S WORKS - SURVEYS OF ROYAL CASTLES AND OTHER BUILDINGS BEFORE 1660 CHIEFLY IN THE PUBLIC RECORD OFFICE

Corrected copy (incorporating hand-written additions)

This is an attempt to list all the written surveys of royal castles and other buildings which are to be found in certain classes of documents in the Public Record Office. The classes concerned are:-

- (I) Those included in the Public Record Office List of Rentals and Surveys
- (Ii) Exchequer, Special Commissions (E176)
- (Iii) Duchy of Lancaster, Special Commissions (DL44)
- (Iv) Duchy of Lancaster, Depositions (DL3)
- (V) Chancery Inquisitions, Miscellaneous (C145)
- (Vi) Chancery Miscellanea (C47)

A few surveys from manuscripts in the British Museum and elsewhere have been included, but no serious attempt has been made to locate surveys not among the Public Records. Even in the Public Record Office there are doubtless more surveys to be discovered, and contributors should not regard this as an exhaustive or definitive list. It is confined to written surveys, and although plans are occasionally attached to them, no attempt has been made to list plans and drawings as such. A list of plans dated earlier than 1603 will be found on the open shelves in the Public Record Office, and there is also a card-index of plans of all dates which can be consulted by contributors.

The surveys listed vary greatly in value, and although a number of doubtful cases have been checked, it has been impossible to examine every survey in order to ensure that it is relevant to the History of the King's Works. It is thought, however, that even in an imperfect form, such a list as this is likely to be a convenience to contributors.
